As anticipated, the Spring 2000 full-color issue of BATS generated more comments from readers than any issue in recent memory. Many thanks to all of you who took the time to share your opinions with us; a few of the notes are excerpted below.

What a wonderful difference color makes. We just love the new format. Hopefully, it should attract more interest from people not yet fond of bats.

As a longtime member, I have watched the progress of BATS with greatest pleasure. The new format is beautiful and puts the world in touch with a vibrant and growing organization. It bespeaks authority and determination to win the struggle for bats! Congrats!

Please, please, please no dark backgrounds behind print; it is too difficult to read.

Wow! Thank you for my daily □ joy of discovery □ moment. I received my BATS and proceeded, as usual, to skim through, page-by-page, back-to-front. I'm somewhat embarrassed to admit that it wasn't until I was three or four pages in that I realized the energy emanating from the page was because one of the pictures was in color! Then I noticed that all the pictures were in color! Just as I was going to check previous issues to find out how long I'd been missing colorful BATS, I arrived at your full-page announcement. Anyway, again, wow! It makes a big and positive difference. P.S. Favor of a reply is not requested. You're probably busy enough coloring in all of those pictures for the next issue.

Thanks to the support of loyal members, BATS magazine has evolved from a 4-page black-and-white newsletter to a 20-page full-color magazine.
